Manager Commentary

During March, the UK stock market performed strongly. It was helped by generally favourable economic statistics, particularly on inflation as UK consumer price inflation in the year to February was 3.4%. Although this remains well above the Bank of England's 2% target, it was lower than widely forecast, showing considerable improvement from the 4% recorded for January, and was the lowest level for 2.5 years. The statistic for economic growth released in March showed gross domestic product (GDP) was estimated to have grown by 0.2% in January 2024 – at least a return to growth following the fall of 0.1% in December 2023.

The FTSE All-Share Index rose by 4.8% during March, just a fraction above the 4.7% growth in our net asset value per share, including income. Our portfolio's performance was resilient as, during the month, one of our most significant shareholdings had a profit warning. OSB reported its results for the year to December 2023 and these were a little ahead of most forecasts; however, it also announced current trading margins that are lower than expectations, resulting in a sharp fall in the share price. For March as a whole, OSB's share price fell more than 9%. While very disappointing, it is worth highlighting that even on these lower estimates, OSB is still expected to generate an attractive return on equity and its valuation appears extraordinarily low.

The portfolio showed the advantages of diversification as positives elsewhere managed to offset this negative impact on performance. In particular, we benefited from the very strong share price rise of Vistry, driven by its encouraging results and an improving rating as other investors warm to its changing business model.

It is also noticeable that the UK equity market is attracting an increasing number of takeover approaches. For us, that meant a sharp rise in the share price of DS Smith as it attracted competing bids from two industry peers. We have invested in DS Smith for many years and viewed its share price as undervaluing its prospects. This is probably true across many other UK-listed companies and the growing swell of takeover approaches is strong evidence to back this up.

Key risks

Stock market movements may cause the value of investments and the income from them to fall as well as rise and investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Changes in rates of exchange may have an adverse effect on the value, price or income of investments. If markets fall, gearing can magnify the negative impact on performance.

CT UK Capital and Income Investment Trust seeks to achieve its objective of long-term capital and income growth by investing in companies with good long-term prospects which may not be fully reflected in their share prices; many of its stocks have a higher than average dividend yield. While the majority of holdings are in large and mid-cap UK companies, the Trust also invests in some smaller companies.

The Trust has built up an impressive record of paying dividends. In every year since the Trust's launch in 1992, it has succeeded in increasing the dividend paid to investors. Since 1998, the Trust has beaten the average dividend paid by the broad UK stock market (as represented by the FTSE All-Share Index). It has also significantly outpaced the rate of inflation as measured by the CPI (Consumer Price Index).

Maintaining a diversified portfolio helps reduce risk and improves reliability. The fund manager has the flexibility to invest internationally to help secure superior dividends at the right price. The fund manager's approach allows the Trust to achieve long-term growth in both income and capital.

With dividends paid four times a year, the Trust is a great option for investors looking for a regular income. For investors with a longer-term horizon, taking the option to reinvest the dividends could be a highly effective way of increasing the total return from their investment.

All in all this Trust is an effective solution for investors who want long-term capital and income growth.

Past performance is not a guide to future results. The value of investments can go down as well as up and you may not get back the full amount that you invested.

A growing dividend that historically has beaten the stock market and inflation
