Manager Commentary

Markets continued their strong start to the year in March as economic data releases showed a resilient economy regardless of stickier inflation numbers. Despite this strong start, European markets have lagged their global peers this year. Investor interest in the region is picking up due to concern over concentration risk in the US market and more attractive valuations in Europe. Frustratingly, smaller companies continue to lag their large-cap counterparts; however, if economic releases continue to be positive, this should reverse. Our portfolio, which rose 3.5%, narrowly lagged a strong index performance during the month.

Our top contributor was online ticket provider and concert organiser CTS Eventim, whose shares rose +13%. Its 2023 revenue performance was very strong, as expected; however, most importantly, the outlook for 2024 remains positive, countering concerns that the post-COVID-19 entertainment boom was unsustainable. Profitability for CTS Eventim remains very attractive, and it is looking to expand its remit to also include venue management, a step that will help it to capture more of the value chain. We also saw a strong share-price performance from Bank of Ireland (+17.3%). Despite profit for the second half of 2023 being below expectations, the dividend and buyback were a positive surprise for the market. Moreover, the market's view that interest-rate cuts may not come as early as initially anticipated helped. Data at the end of the month showed strong mortgage approvals in the country, highlighting potential upside to estimates. This was also reflected in a strong move for the shares of Irish housebuilder Cairn (+9.7%).

On the negative side, Italian Asset Manager Azimut saw its shares slide -5.1% as it announced a lower-than-expected cash dividend as management wanted to retain balance-sheet flexibility with a debt payment due. In our view, the business is well-capitalised, so we were slightly surprised at this conservatism; however, we believe the strong dividend payments will resume once the debt payment is resolved. German pharmaceutical supplier Gerresheimer struggled after Novo Nordisk's announcement that it was making progress in an oral alternative for its injectable diabetes and weight-loss drugs (where Gerresheimer is involved in the packaging supply). While we continue to monitor the long-term threat to this business, we believe the medium-term opportunities are not yet priced in by markets. We also saw a sharp price decline (-15.2%) in BE Semiconductor's shares; market commentary suggested a potential delay to the adoption of its revolutionary hybrid bonding technology. The shares have performed very well since purchase and we had reduced our exposure, but we are not unduly concerned.

Key risks

Stock market movements may cause the value of investments and the income from them to fall as well as rise and investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Changes in rates of exchange may have an adverse effect on the value, price or income of investments. If markets fall, gearing can magnify the negative impact on performance. Where investments are made in smaller companies, their potential volatility may increase the risk to the value of, and the income from the investment.
